Yanis Amirat
A12
Cookies Assignment

Cookies use small text files stored on your computer in order to remember information about the user when they return to a site. This can be convenient, as this can be used for remembering log-in information. Some shopping sites also use this to help shoppers find items that are related to what they usually search. However, this can also bring some detriments. Over time these cookies can clutter your hard drive, taking up unnecessary space. Sites can also use cookies to track personal information, and if that site isn't secure then your personal info is at risk. I believe that cookies can provide some benefit, but I only allow a site to use them unless I absolutely have to.